Munich, 2015-8-6

Reclaiming African and African Diasporic Voices!

The fifth Pan-African Congress in Munich in 2015 will take place on October 10th & 11th in “Das Schloß”, Schwere-Reiter-Str. 15, 80637 Munich.

Admission is free

The fifth Pan-African Congress will take place in Munich, this time under the slogan "Reclaiming African and African Diasporic Voices!"

The previous four Pan-African congresses, which took place every second year in Munich were received with positive international feedback. The slogan of this year's congress refers to the “Decade for People of African Descent” from 2015 to 2025, which was proclaimed by the United Nations and aims to bring the situation of African descended peoples more into focus. This conference aims to garner more attention for the Pan-Africanist cause. In our view, the decade is connected with political demands for participation and equality.

The Pan-Africanism Working Group, host of the Congress and member of the recently founded network ENPAD, European Network for People of African Descent, will focus on the following themes:

- Science and Research from an African and Afro-Diasporic Perspective
- Burkina Faso - a Revolution with International Significance
- SOS! Present Day Slavery in Africa (e.g. Mauretania)
- Commemoration: October 1945, Fifth Pan-African Congress in Manchester / October 2015, Seventy Years Later, Continuum of Pan-African Movement
- SOS! Refugee Dramas: Responsibilities and Challenges

For more information regarding the aforementioned themes please see the information below.

A panel from experts from Africa and the African Diaspora(s) will present their perspectives in the form of presentations, moderated panel discussions and round of Q & A.

The congress is dedicated to the legacy of the following African and African-diasporic luminaries:

Dr. Cheikh Anta Diop (*29.12.1923 - †07.02.1986): a Pan-African researcher and one of the most famous Egyptologists of the African continent.

Dr. Maya Angelou (*04.04.1928 - †28.05.2014): an Afro-American writer, professor and important personality of the civil-rights movement and was acquainted with Martin Luther King and Malcom X. She moved to Ghana where she taught at the University of Ghana's School of Music and Drama.

The schedule will be complemented with an exhibition about Cheikh Anta Diop and Maya Angelou, as well as a cultural programme of traditional and contemporary African music by African artists and musicians.

In cooperation with the project "Urban Vibes " of the Cultural Department of the City of Munich, a live concert " Urban Panafrican Vibes" will take place during the Congress on Saturday 10 October with Sams'k le Jah and Smockey from Burkina Faso at the venue of the congress „Das Schloß“.

Major Themes of the Conference

Science and Research from the African Perspective

Whenever Europe, Germany or generally the Western countries discuss science and research; Africa or people of African descent are not included nor are their view points considered. For most people the African continent and its peoples, there are mainly negative depictions that focus on poverty, hunger, war, dictatorship and catastrophes of every kind. However,, people from Africa and its Diaspora have made progressive contributions to many international fields. Nevertheless, Africa hardly benefits from its developments but rather suffers from them. By focusing on this first topic we want to underline the presence African and African diasporic peoples in field of international science and research to counter negative depictions, prejudices and stereotypes.

Burkina Faso - A Revolution With International Significance

In October 2014, the youth and women in Burkina Faso mobilized to overthrow the dictatorship within three days, which was ongoing for 27 years. They are still fighting with peaceful intent for the democratization of their country without any help from the outside. The previous fighting - as well as the three days - can be called the realization of the revolution, which is going to include all political and social sectors of Burkina Faso in the future. This event has an international importance by showing other societies and nations - particularly African states, which suffer from dictatorship and a non-functional rule of law - that resistance against suppression is possible and foremost, how far a strong common will of citizens can lead to.

In the context of the second main topic we want to investigate the current situation – a year after the revolution in Burkina Faso. Therefore, we are going to invite certain activists and discuss following questions:

- Are we actually speaking of a revolution or an uprising?
- How was this development actually possible?
- Which challenges will follow in the aftermath?
- Could this development also take place elsewhere?

SOS! Present Day Slavery in Africa (e.g. Mauritania)

We are very concerned about the ongoing global enslavement of Black people particularly in Mauritania, where it is still practised in the 21st century. Freedom fighters such as Biram Dah Abeid (Weimar Human Rights Award Winner), activist for a Mauritania without enslavement, and his co-activists have been in jail since November 2014 because of their commitment. The aim of the third theme of the congress seeks to discuss strategies for gaining the freedom of Biram Dah Abeid by October 2015, so that he can participate in the Congress. The goal here is to jointly develop solutions and other procedures for the abolition of slavery.

Commemoration: October 1945, Fifth Pan-African Congress in Manchester / October 2015, Seventy Years Later, Continuum of Pan-African Movement

On October 15, the fifth Pan-African Congress in Manchester was dedicated to the situation of the African continent and the people of African descent in the Diaspora.

The subsequent decolonization of Africa, which took place at the end of the 1950s and at the beginning of the 1960s, was shaped by the results of the congress.

The congress denounced imperialism and capitalism and called for racism to be considered a crime. Some participants of the congress were later statesmen in Africa: Hastings Banda (Malawi), Kwame Nkrumah (Ghana), Obafemi Awolowo (Nigeria) and Jomo Kenyatta (Kenya). 70 years later finds coincidentally held in Munich the bi-annual Pan-African Congress for the fifth time. Seventy years later the bi-annual Pan-African Congress will be held in Munich for the fifth time. It is important for us to look back and to seek solutions to these persistent challenges.

SOS! Refugee dramas: The Responsibilities and Challenges

As Pan-Africanists standing for international exchange and equal rights we cannot close the congress without mentioning the refugee drama in the Mediterranean Sea. Thousands of children, sisters, brothers and parents from the Diaspora have drowned and are lying on the bottom of the Mediterranean Sea. These individuals have chosen to migrate because they had no other choice for survival. They fled and flee from dictatorships, wars, persecution, natural disasters, starvation etc. In the past decades, the Mediterranean Sea has become a cemetery for people of African descent. During this Congress we would like to denounce the societal structures that have led to this situation. Last but not least, we want to work together with our invited guests and participants in order to find solutions.
